Writing good essays in APA format is not as hard as it looks. This document provides instructions and a model for basic essay content and format. There are also many other resources available to help you develop professional-quality writing. You will find them in eCollege, in The HUB, in the Academic Success Center, and on the Internet. Ultimately, you are responsible for meeting your professor's expectations for assignments in that professor's class, so follow all instructions and requirements expressed by the professor.

Essay Content and Organization

Your introduction should start with an attention-grabber or hook. Follow this with appropriate background so the reader understands the situation. Then introduce your thesis …

 … (Please see the accompanying "Guide to APA Research Writing and Formatting" for the full text of this instructional essay. Always follow your professor's required organization and format requirements.) …

Conclusion

Ask your professor for specific content and format expectations. Use the available print resources, ASC writing tutors and the Smarthinking online tutor source. By carefully utilizing tutors and print resources, you can produce a well-written and easy-to-read essay that meets APA requirements, avoids plagiarism, and shares your insights to make the world a better place.
